Safety Razor Blades for Prisoners Declared a Property Expense.

Because federal prisoners are required by the regulations to shave and the same regulations deny them the possession of their own razors, it is a property expense against the government for the purchase of safety razor blades. So decides the acting controller of the Treasury, C. M. Force.

The auditor for the Department of Justice rejected a bill of $750 for safety razor blades for the use of federal prisoners in Alaska. He considered this a personal expense to the prisoners.
